It's always such a pain to be both a musician and Engineer. It's always a tradeoff between diversification and concentration.

A boy with his cup of coffee, 11:50 a.m. in a cafe, after several hours of studying, the boy was so distracted to his textbooks and notes, but suddenly so concentrated to the piece of music in his soul. As soon as the boy opened his Piano synth, he had felt the concentration he barely had when studying, and the odor of the coffee flew the current of melody into his veins through the smoke.

As trapped into another world, he went on a trip among the multiverse, sometimes he sits beneath a sky full of stars with the her he once had lost, sometimes he's having a candlelit dinner with a group of elite in the Wall Street.....with all the dreams which hadn't come true, the boy pulled himself back and sealed them inside the staff in this reality.

Ahh.....,time doesn't fade, time runs away from the reality.....

The boy cleaned up his desk, decided to visit the bookstore, perhaps buying another book about investment, and he shall never worry about his pocket with his Elipse member card.
